A new sexual fetish has emerged where couples repeatedly get pregnant then have multiple abortions.

Every day we stray further from God's light.

In a Reddit post entitled 'Question regarding abortion and breeding fetish', one user reveals how she has "a female friend who has a really powerful fetish for breeding" and never used birth control.

"She is with a male partner currently who is just like her, into breeding and they have been practising their fetish for quite a few abortions," the post reads.

Another male respondent then shared details of his own abortion fetish lifestyle.

"I know this fetish. My girlfriend and me have the same fetish. My girlfriend enjoys her pregnancies and she enjoys the abortion. Her preferred date to abort is between 20 and 24 weeks of gestation. I enjoy making her pregnant. And I enjoy the time of her pregnancy. She has no menstrual period and she is sexually very active," he writes.

"In the last ten years in our relationship we have done seven abortions and my girlfriend is pregnant again with a little girl," he adds.

Another respondent then praises him for sharing his fetish, writing, “It is good (and rare) to hear of a couple (both man and woman) where both members are into abortion and pregnancy. This is a wonderful and potent example of personal power, where sex meets violence and creation combines with destruction.”

Truly sick.

Given that the left has turned abortion from something that used to be a shameful last resort into a celebrated virtue, it becoming a sexual fetish was always the next (il)logical step.

Video: The 'After School SATAN CLUB' For Kids Is Back

Virginia school claims it has to allow event to go ahead so as not to discriminate

A school in Virginia is under fire from parents after it announced that an 'After School Satan Club' run by the Satanic Temple is to take place in its facilities.

The club is scheduled to take place on December 15 at B.M. Williams Primary School in Chesapeake.

ASSC is there for the children of Chesapeake, VA starting Dec 15. Join an environment free from threats of eternal damnation. Print and return one of the attached Permission Slips and bring it to the first meeting. For the Electronic Permission Slip

A member of the Satanic Temple who organised the event argued that because the school has a Christian club, it also had to allow a Satan club.

“I would like to add that this club is only happening because of the Evangelical club that is already present at the school,” stated satanist Rose Bastet.

She added that the Christian club “does aim at indoctrinating children and we received a request from a concerned parent to make sure there is another club available to kids that don’t wish to be taught that they are sinful and subject to burning in hell for all eternity for slight infractions.”

A parent on the Facebook thread where the flier was posted noted that “Stuff like this is why the wife and I are sacrificing so much to send our son to a private school.”

In the wake of the backlash, the school district issued a statement noting “The School District has long held policies and procedures in place which allow varied community groups to use our publicly funded facilities outside of the school day. This is common practice among school districts around the state and nation. “

The statement continues, “Over the years, different religious groups have requested and been allowed to rent our facilities after hours. By law, CPS cannot discriminate based on beliefs among groups wishing to rent our facilities.”

It concludes, “Consistent with the law as detailed above and the criteria set out in the CPS Board policy regarding community use of facilities, the School District has approved a building use request from an organization known as the ‘After School Satan Club’ (ASSC) to host gatherings after school hours at B.M. Williams Primary School.”

As we previously highlighted, this move on kids by Satanists, is happening all over the country.

The Satanic Temple is even suing an elementary school in Pennsylvania after officials refused to allow the organisation to run the ‘Satan Club’.

Just days after being voted down from having an after-school "Satan Club," The Satanic Temple is filing a civil law suit against the elementary school. <https://t.co/yng9SbkVSD>

Lucien Greaves, Co-Founder of The Satanic Temple, previously claimed “We believe that Satan is a great metaphor for rebellion against tyranny and is the embodiment of all of the values we espouse.”

Greaves claims that Satan isn’t actually worshipped by the Temple, despite regular “Hail Satan” posts.

Is it surprising that parents are unwilling to trust this greasy-haired one-eyed Satanist guy with their six year olds?

Meanwhile, satanism is being promoted like its perfectly normal by the likes of Disney:

“The controversy has become one of the most explicit collisions of internet culture, politics, fashion and conspiracy theories to date.”

In the wake of the ongoing Balenciaga pedophilia propaganda scandal, the New York Times produced a piece Tuesday that essentially claimed the entire thing is some sort of QAnon conspiracy theory.

In the report, the Times suggests that only the likes of QAnon, Tucker Carlson, The New York Post, and Fox News are spreading the idea that the luxury fashion brand condones child exploitation.

Kiddy bondage is high fashion.

Not liking kiddy bondage is QAnon.

— Tim Wood (@TimOnPoint) November 29, 2022

The piece states “they ignited a firestorm that traveled from the internet to Fox News, fueled by allegations that Balenciaga condoned child exploitation. The controversy has become one of the most explicit collisions of internet culture, politics, fashion and conspiracy theories to date.”

It further posits that “As online criticism of the campaigns spread, the story was picked up across right-leaning media outlets, including The New York Post and the prime time Fox News show Tucker Carlson Tonight. The show has helped to publicize and mainstream QAnon, the internet conspiracy theory that ‘a group of Satan-worshiping elites who run a child sex ring are trying to control our politics and media.’”

The report adds “Here you have a major international retail brand promoting kiddie porn and sex with children,” Mr. Carlson told viewers on Nov. 22, “and not promoting it subtly but right out in the open.”

Hey @nytimes, how was the ad NOT child exploitation? From the bondage-gear clad teddy bears to the legal documents related to child pornography in the frame, where's the conspiracy exactly?

A reminder of the shoot in question...

There is NO acceptable reason to be exposing children to BDSM. The court document in the ad appears to be a case known as 'Free speech coalition vs Ashcroft' (look it up) this is sick & now Balenciaga has deleted all post on IG & changed the photo on the site. The fashion company even apologised and brought a lawsuit against the ad agency responsible.

Ps. Even Balenciaga issued an ass-covering apology & sued ad agency.

Many charged that the Times is protecting the fashion label:

We see you @nytimes trying to make the Balenciaga scandal into a “right wing conspiracy theory” so you can protect the Kardashians and ignore the severe creepiness of creating and condoning child porn and abuse in fashion. 🙄 😡 😞 🤢 <https://t.co/KIWB29A9eo>

Video: Disney Show Has Kids Hold Up Sign Saying “WE LOVE YOU SATAN”

Not a good look in wake of Balenciaga scandal

A new Disney Christmas show features a group of children holding up signs that spell out “WE LOVE YOU SATAN,” prompting a backlash from many, particularly in the wake of the Balenciaga scandal.

The incident occurs in the series called Santa Clauses, a Disney + spin off of the popular Tim Allen movies.

Each child holds up a letter, which is supposed to spell out “We Love You Santa,” but a couple of the kids end up in the wrong position.

Obviously, the scene is intended for comic effect, but it isn’t playing well.

The scene comes amid further revelations of designers associated with fashion label Balenciaga promoting satanism, following on from a weird photo shoot which sexualized kids.

A thread on WHO is REALLY behind the #Balenciaga ads:

— curioslight (@curioslight) November 27, 2022

As we previously highlighted, despite news outlets declaring the issue to be a “conspiracy theory,” the fashion label was forced to apologize.

Disney angered many parents earlier this year by throwing its weight and funding behind gender reassignment procedures, even for kids, as well as featuring transgender and LGBT characters:

EXCLUSIVE: I've obtained leaked video from Disney's upcoming show "Baymax," which promotes the transgender flag and the idea that men can have periods to children as young as two years old.

It's all part of Disney's plan to re-engineer the discourse around kids and sexuality. pic.twitter.com/y1ATnKCEce — Christopher F. Rufo ✂️ (@realchrisrufo) June 28, 2022

The company was also heavily criticised by Florida governor Ron De Santis following Disney's public rebuke of his "Parents Rights in Education" bill which prevents children as young as kindergarten age being taught about transgender and gay sex issues in schools.

Tucker Carlson charged that Disney has a "fixation on the sexuality of children" pointing to recent reports that four employees of the media giant were charged with human trafficking in Florida, with one having allegedly sent sexually explicit texts to an law enforcement agent posing as a teenage child.
