Good Monday Morning,

May the Spirit of the Gospel and the Holy Word be Always on our Tongues, in our Hearts, Minds, and in our Hands.

This morning I struggled to stay awake after getting up at a regular time. I ran out of tea, and instead made a Ginger Tea – which was good and warm and .. caffeine free, and I suppose this morning that was a problem as I was very dosey and kept slipping and glacing into other Multiverse Hosted situation.

I wonder if I could come up with a term for that, something more solid then 'weak ego boundaries', where a person actually slip around into different versions of self .. perhaps others living their lives.

So after adding something like another 3 hours(!) I suppose I need the extra. I had some solid dreams but they did not stay with me on waking.

Yesterday after Mass and Class and lunch with friend I came back and finished most of the normal editing and publish before Sundown, except putting 'Referenced Here' in all the video's comments .. so I had little time to go through all these longer videos I linked to yesterday.

May this be a Blessing to you and us all. [And all our Futures, and future Multiverse Past.]

Wasn't Football Once About Stoicism?

Reaction to Damar Hamlin's on-field collapse included public shaming and encouragement of emotional display

 Janice Fiamengo
31 min ago 1

It was ironic that one of the first questions Buffalo Bills' safety Damar Hamlin is said to have asked when he regained consciousness following his on-field cardiac arrest last Monday night was “Who won the game?”

It was ironic because National Football League officials had just spent days fervently denying that they had initially planned to finish the game after the 24-year-old Hamlin was rushed by ambulance to the Cincinnati University Hospital.

The decision to postpone the game was announced roughly an hour after Hamlin's

THE clamour for the return of face masks is a triumph of unreason, and a blow to science.

But I would fiercely defend your freedom to wear one if you want to. If covering your face with a piece of cloth makes you feel safer or kinder, far be it from me to stop you.

It is none of my business, and none of the Government's business, what other people wear, on their faces or anywhere else (except for the needs of personal modesty).

In return, I ask only that you do me the same favour, and do not urge me, let alone try to compel me, to don a garment which I think silly, pointless and politicised.

If I put it on, I would be pretending to believe controversial things that I don't think

Department for Business and Enterprise said: 'The evidence of the benefit of using a face covering to protect others is weak and the effect is likely to be small.'

This was true then, and it is still true. The evidence was indeed weak. But, even so, we saw changes of position among experts in spring and early summer 2020.

For example, Dr Jenny Harries, then a Deputy Chief Medical Officer, warned on March 12, 2020, that people could be putting themselves more at risk from contracting Covid by wearing masks. She was basically political, and not medical.

On July 12, 2020, Deborah Cohen, the then medical correspondent of BBC2's Newsnight, reported that the WHO had reversed its advice on masks, from 'don't wear them' to 'do wear them'.

But it had not done so because of scientific information. The evidence had not, in fact, backed the wearing of face coverings. The change was down to political pressure.

Infected

Ms Cohen said on Twitter:

'inconclusive'. But it is hard to argue with these figures. The Danish study favoured mask-wearing, as has been claimed, why is it still virtually unknown?

Supporters of masks also rightly say that the Danish study looked only at whether masks protected their wearers, not at whether they stopped the infection from spreading.

But in a letter to the British Medical Journal, Dr Antonio Lazzarino, a medical doctor and epidemiologist from Imperial College London, pointed out: 'The study did not evaluate whether people with masks are less likely to infect someone else.'

'However, given we now know that surgical masks have limited filtering capacity, we must derive that it is very unlikely that surgical masks provide protection from

So an out-of-control wild man kills beautiful Ashli Babbitt, a true Patriot, who was the only one killed on January 6th. Her mother goes to protest her death and memory, and they arrest her mother. Something has to be done about these Communists and Marxists that are taking over and destroying our Country. Pray for Ashli, and her wonderful, brave mother!

"How would you even spot a real super villain? It's not like they'll dress up in a costume and have a German accent like in the movies."

THE REAL PROBLEM IS NAZIS MAKING FOX NEWS AMERICANS LOOK BAD. 🇺🇸

@FiatLuxGenesis

NO ONE who took the shots was able to give informed consent because the RISKS were CENSORED, the benefits were FALSIFIED, and it all occurred under state and corporate COERCION

EVERY single shot was an ethical CRIME and medical malpractice

They fear love because it creates a world they can't control.

Sweden isn't safe for women anymore 🇸🇪

- 42 936 reported rapes last 5 yrs
- 61 no-go zones
- Most shootings in Europe
- Morality police patrolling streets
- Women afraid to go out at night
- 40 000 women genitally mutilated

Socialism destroyed my country.
